35	[consent_form]	University Of Wisconsin-Madison Research Participant Information and Consent Form Title of the Study: COVID and the Healthy Minds Program for Educators Principal Investigator: Simon Goldberg, PhD: phone: (608) 265-8986, email: sbgoldberg@wisc.edu Research coordinator: Corrina Frye: phone: 608-890-3073, email: cfrye@wisc.edu Description Of The Research The Healthy Minds Program is an app-based well-being program that involves mental exercises integrated into daily life, with an approach that parallels the way physical exercise becomes a part of healthy living. Given the current global COVID-19 pandemic, we want to better understand how the pandemic is impacting people's lives and well-being. We are seeking 400 people willing to take part in this research. You have been asked to participate because you are at least 18 years old, are a K-12 education employee and have no major history of meditation practices. What Will My Participation Involve? If you decide to participate, all activities will all occur remotely. You will be asked to complete a 30-60 minute set of questionnaires (up to 6 times). You will be asked questions related to health and well-being and specifically about your experiences as a result of COVID-19. The information collected will add to our understanding of the connections between our mind, body, and well-being during the pandemic. We will ask you questions now as well as weekly for 4 weeks and again 3 months later. You will be assigned to either the Healthy Minds Program group or the wait list control group. If you are assigned to the Healthy Minds Program, you will be asked to participant in a four-week well-being module via an app on your phone. These modules consist of mental exercises that are integrated into daily life, with an approach that parallels the way physical exercise becomes a part of healthy living. The Healthy Minds Program delivers core content with instruction administered through a curriculum of high-quality guided audio practices. If you are assigned to the wait list control group, you will not participate in the Healthy Minds Program during the study; however, you will have the option to access the Program free of charge after you have completed all the testing timepoints. Are There Any Risks To Me? We believe there is minimal risk associated with participation in this study. Some of the survey questions will ask for information about personal or sensitive topics (e.g., physical and psychological health, childhood experiences). Answers will not be monitored in real time. However, mental health resources will be provided at the end of the survey. You also may skip any questions you are uncomfortable answering. Are There Any Benefits To Me? There are no direct benefits to participating, but your participation in the study may benefit other people in the future by helping us learn more about stress and well-being. Will I Be Compensated For Me Participation? Yes. You may be compensated up to $150. Here is the payment breakdown: Baseline/Pre-Intervention Questionnaires = $0 After Week 1 Questionnaires = $10 After Week 2 Questionnaires = $10 After Week 3 Questionnaires = $10 Post-Intervention Questionnaires = $30 Bonus for Completing Above 5 Timepoints = $40 Mid-Term Follow-Up Questionnaires = $50 If you are not a US citizen, you can still participate in the study. However, we will not be able to provide monetary compensation. How Will The Researchers Keep My Research Information Confidential? We have strict rules to protect your personal information. We limit who has access to your name, address, phone number, and other information that can identify you. We will also store this information securely. Your information will be assigned a code number. The key connecting your name to this code will be kept in a password protected computer file separate from your data. Only study team members will have access to the code. Your name will not be used in any report. We will not share identifiable data from this study with any outside parties. IP addresses are collected for network management purposes and will not be linked with the data they are providing through the surveys or through the phone app. A description of this clinical trial will be available on http://www.ClinicalTrials.gov, as required by U.S. Law. This website will not include information that can identify you. At most, the website will include a summary of the results. You can search this website at any time. What Will Happen To My Data After My Participation Ends? Data collected for this research may be published in journals or magazines. When the data are shared with publishers it will not be shared in any way that can identify you personally. Data shared with publishers may be used by other researchers outside of the University of Wisconsin-Madison, but only data that cannot identify you personally will be used. There are no limits on who might use these data or how the data may be used in the future.	descriptive

They can be done on a smartphone but are generally easier to read on a computer or tablet. You will get your group assignment on the last page of the surveys, once all pre-test questionnaires have been completed. If you do not receive your group assignment, please be sure you have advanced through all survey pages. 91	[faces1_inst1]	Instructions: Every day we make quick judgments about people based on their face, appearance, gait, style, and other visual characteristics. For example, we might use such quick judgments to help determine who in a group of people we might approach to ask for directions or help, or who in a group of people we should avoid. Here we are asking you to make similar quick judgments about how much you like different faces. In this activity, you will see a series of faces. An image and a rating scale will appear on the screen. After viewing the image, decide how much you like or dislike each face by choosing a point on the rating scale. Rate how much you would like or dislike this person if you saw them in real life. Don't overthink it. Just give your honest gut response. Let's practice rating a few faces so you can get a feel for the activity.	descriptive

166	[faces2_inst1]	Instructions: Every day we make quick judgments about people based on their face, appearance, gait, style, and other visual characteristics. For example, we might use such quick judgments to help determine who in a group of people we might approach to ask for directions or help, or who in a group of people we should avoid. Here we are asking you to make similar quick judgments about how much you like different faces. In this activity, you will see a series of faces. An image and a rating scale will appear on the screen. After viewing the image, decide how much you like or dislike each face by choosing a point on the rating scale. Rate how much you would like or dislike this person if you saw them in real life. Don't overthink it. Just give your honest gut response. Let's practice rating a few faces so you can get a feel for the activity.	descriptive

550	[dds_instructions]	Defusion is a term used by psychologists to describe a state of achieving distance from internal experiences such as thoughts and feelings. Suppose you put your hands over your face and someone asks you, "What do hands look like?" You might answer, "They are all dark." If you held your hands out a few inches away, you might add, "they have fingers and lines in them." In a similar way, getting some distance from your thoughts allows you to see them for what they are. The point is to notice the process of thinking as it happens rather than only noticing the results of that process, in other words, your thoughts. When you think a thought, it "colors" your world. When you see a thought from a distance, you can still see how it "colors" your world (you understand what it means), but you also see that you are doing the "coloring." It would be as if you always wore yellow sunglasses and forgot you were wearing them. Defusion is like taking off your glasses and holding them several inches away from your face; then you can see how they make the world appear to be yellow instead of only seeing the yellow world. Similarly, when you are defused from an emotion you can see yourself having the emotion, rather than simply being in it. When you are defused from a craving or a sensation of pain, you do not just experience the craving or pain, you see yourself having them. Defusion allows you to see thoughts, feelings, cravings, and pain as simply processes taking place in your brain. The more defused you are from thoughts or feelings, the less automatically you act on them. For example, you may do something embarrassing and have the thought "I'm such an idiot." If you are able to defuse from this thought, you will be able to see it as just a thought. In other words you can see that the thought is something in your mind that may or may not be true. If you are not able to defuse, you would take the thought as literally true, and your feelings and actions would automatically be impacted by the thoughts. Based on the definition of defusion above, please rate each scenario according to the extent to which you would normally be in a state of defusion in the specified situation. You may want to read through all the examples before beginning to respond to the questions. (Important: you are not being asked about the degree to which you would think certain thoughts or feel a certain way, but the degree to which you would defuse if you did.)	descriptive
